Faculty & Administrators Respond To

Survey of School's Problems

By Greg Copeland

Last May the Saint Leo chapter of the American Association of University Professors conducted a "Problems Survey" of the college faculty and administration.

The survey asked members of the faculty and administration to respond to nineteen statements of problems at Saint Leo. The respondents were asked to agree or disagree with the statements, and on what basis they made their decisions, be it personal belief, personal experience or hearsay. Thirdly, respondents were asked what degree of importance they attached to the statement: great, moderate or minimal importance. Of the fifty faculty and eighteen administrators asked to respond to the survey, twenty-three faculty and eight administrators did so.

The results indicate that the faculty and administration are in general agreement about many of the problems confronting the college today. The percentage point difference on eleven of the statements was ten points or less. Only on eight of the statements were the faculty and administration separated by more than ten per cent.

The greatest degree of disagreement between faculty and administration is the idleness of standing committees, administration disregard for faculty opinion when they are not in agreement, faculty tenure, job security, secrecy of administrators salaries, the role of the divisional chairman and the effect of not requiring a theology course.

In view of the results, it appears the administration should take steps to bring about better communication and cooperation between it and the faculty. A lack of communication and cooperation is apparent in areas such as giving honorary degrees, in matters surrounding job security (such as tenure, promotion and salary controversy) and secrecy should be kept at a minimum, and an examination of the standing joint committees' role should be made.

The results are as follows and are published in their entirety in the hope that a study of such great significance may not be relegated to a file cabinet, but rather that it may signal a call for action from those in positions of responsibility in both the faculty and administration.

Experimental Plan To Clean Up Lake Jovita Approved

By Joe Grund

In the October 19 issue of Monarch, a story appeared concerning the cleaning up of Lake Jovita. The proposed plan was to clear the lake of the troublesome hydrilla with the use of chemical applications.

In Tallahassee on November 30, the Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission voted to test a weed eating white amur fish to clear the hydrilla in Lake Jovita.

The amur, a weed eating carp, is a native of China. It has been tested and is capable of gnawing growth up to three inches back from the water line. The fish previous to experimentation here in Florida was prohibited by the commission by ten years of testing and experimentation with the fish have proved that the fish is incapable of natural reproduction, therefore, the possibility of overpopulation would not exist. The commission planners are being very cautious and this is why they have chosen Lake Jovita for an experimentation site.

The commission settled on the 150 acre weed filled Lake Jovita because it offered close control and no chance for the non-native fish to escape and overbreed, thus causing embarrassment and environmental outcry and problems in eradication.

Stocking probably cannot be done until September. A program may be instituted until the fish can be stocked because many of the lakes in the area are being choked out by the hydrilla. The weeds are destroying the fishing, swimming and general use of many lakes in the area.

Editorial

With the close of the semester but a few days away, the pressure to make good grades on remaining tests and term papers is tremendous. All students feel the pressure for grades, some more than others. All are reminded daily that there are only so many places in law school or medical school, and that, without grades, you don't get in. We are told there are only so many positions in the business world that pay a 'decent' salry, $20,000 plus.

In order to meet the mark, to measure up to society's standard, and insure a place within the ranks of the successful, we do what is NECESSARY. What is NECESSARY? Is cheating on a test NECESSARY? Is copying someone else's term paper NECESSARY? Is adjusting a professor's record book NECESSARY? Is getting the best grade possible–regardless of the means–NECESSARY? NECESSARY is not done by all, but affects all. NECESSARY is known by all and is generally condoned and accepted as part of the process of education. Those condoning and accepting NECESSARY, nonchalantly say it has always been with us and there is nothing you can do to remove it.

One may ask, why is NECESSARY a part of our society? Part of the reason may be due to the sanctions established by society. We, as students, must work within certain sanctions and it is our performance within these sanctions that forms the basis for society's reward of a good job, or any job. If one student actively researches a term paper and receives a lower grade than one who re-types a previous work of a fellow student, the latter is presumed to be the superior student, despite his act of forgery.

You ask yourself what you've got besides a 'C' or a 'D'? You conclude that because you did some work you learned something and it is you who will be rewarded in the long run and your buddy won't make it "out in the world." But what makes you so sure that "out in the world" the same thing won't happen? Does not ye olde motto "cooperate and graduate" find a home outside the perimeter of a classroom? A man who was judged to be a success in the eyes of his peers, a former Speaker of the House of Representatives, said it a different way, "go along and get along." Are we to accept this and continue to build our society upon crumbling blocks of hypocrisy, deceit and fraud?

The solution is largely dependent on how we act as individuals. Do we compound the errors of the past by accepting the present as the inevitable condition of man and history as proof that man repeats the errors of his ways?

You answer this question for yourself and others by what you do and say, by the actions you take each day. In trying to build a better world we cannot discount the little things, for what we do now will have a profound influence on how we conduct our lives after graduation.

Is it NECESSARY to cheat and perpetrate fraud or should we work toward a better world, free of such NECESSITIES?

WHO GETS THE OIL?

The American people have been asked to lower the thermostat to 68 degrees and, required by law in some states, to drive their automobiles no faster than 50 m.p.h. and 55 m.p.h. in Florida as of Monday. The energy crisis, however, has not meant an end to oil shipments to Vietnam, Cambodia and Thailand. This is not new. The U.S. had previously supplied Southeast Asia with oil from the Middle East refined in Singapore, but what is new is that shipments of crude from the Middle East to Singapore stopped three weeks ago. Americans will have no outside Christmas lights this year because of the energy crisis, but there is oil for South Vietnamese President Thu's army in the country that signed for peace just a few months ago . . . Why? Write your Senator, Congressman or President and demand an answer.

Letters To The Editor

Saint Leo Students Give Aid

Thanksgiving Day 1973
1575 Fourth Street
Rensselaer, NY 12144

The President
Saint Leo College
St. Leo, Florida

Dear Rev. Father:

In counting our blessings, this letter is to offer our grateful thanks to you and the fine young people who came to our assistance at the entrance of the college at dusk on the evening of November 19 past.

Within 50 miles of our destination we were towed from I-75 at noon due to a serious and unforeseen mechanical failure to our car. We spent the rest of the day at the Buick agency and our car went dead in front of the college after having been repaired, or so we thought.

A special thanks to the black girl who directed my husband to a telephone to request help from Buick – one also to the young man from New Hyde Park, N.Y. – one, too, to the young man from Virginia and the nice priest who himself had had a car into Buick for repair that same day. It was the lad who drove my husband in a borrowed car to a mechanic at Standard Chevron who gave us temporary help when Buick disregarded our plea.

I just don't know what we should have done if this young man had not been so kind. Darkness in strange territory under such circumstances is a harrowing experience. As it was, the mechanic guided us personally to a suitable place to spend the night and the next noon found us on our way, with a very lame excuse from Buick for having ignored our SOS.

We had come 1,500 miles without incident, we never drive in the dark. Our problem was compounded because my husband is a heart patient; it was a frightening ordeal period.

How lucky can two people be under these circumstances to have had the good fortune of being stranded in front of Saint Leo College!

Whatever else is attained in a Catholic college, the influence for good is paramount and these young people are a fine example. I fear not the future.

In closing I must mention my recollection of the painting of Pope Leo which hung in the parlor of my grandmother's home as long as she lived. Is he not the patron of your college?

Also, our son is a graduate of Assumption College in Worcester, Massachusetts, and his wife was graduated from Saint Rose in Albany. They are both affiliated in Catholic education in Albany, N.Y.

Again, with our grateful thanks is the wish for God's choicest blessings on you and those in your care.

Respectfully yours,
Mary E. Gill

Watergate Course Offered

Dear Editor,

It certainly is interesting to note that Dr. Horgan is teaching a course labeled "Watergate Affairs" next semester. Since he has taken this giant step in education, here are a few ideas for courses to run with "Watergate Affairs."

Let's have a course in "Chappaquiddick Affairs" and a class in "Illinois Election Affairs of 1960" at Saint Leo next semester. The possibilities are endless.

Nobody drowned at Watergate.

Andrew T. Finn

A Letter of Thanks

Dear Editor:

It is truly a comforting feeling to know that when a student (many of which are one thousand miles from home) have someone here at Saint Leo who cares when he or she become ill.

I was unaware of the concern the student affairs staff has for students, until I became ill three weeks ago. I felt mild stomach cramps the Monday night after I returned from Thanksgiving vacation. They progressed through the night until it became unbearable. At 7:30 in the morning I took it upon myself to get some help. Security drove me to Community General Hospital in Dade City where I was diagnosed as having appendicitis. Three hours later I was operated on.

In the meantime, Paul Shaw, dean of men, was contacting my parents. He remained in the waiting room for two hours while I was in the recovery room. During the next few days while I was in the hospital Mr. Shaw, Mrs. Shaw and Mr. O'Gorman visited me in the hospital, leaving me magazines and other entertainment.

I am indebted to these people for their concern and care. Their help didn't stop once I was out of the hospital. Mr. Shaw provided a ride to Dr. Deal's office in Dade City when my stitches were removed. It is a good feeling to know that there are people like the Shaws watching over us.

Thank you,

Joe Grund

Time To Apply For Summer Gov't Jobs

The U.S. Civil Service Commission (Washington, D.C. 20415) publishes a pamphlet entitled "Summer Jobs in Federal Agencies." This pamphlet details the available jobs for summer employment in the U.S. Government.

Jobs are available in four areas of employment: Group 1, primarily post office, clerical and sub-professional, career related positions; Group 2, positions requiring specialized study, but no degree; Group 3, specialized professional and administrative – both requiring bachelors's or equivalent experience; Group 4, trade and labor opportunities.

Many of these positions require that applicants complete the Summer Employment Examination (all Group I openeings). In any case apply early.

Several firms and agencies offer part time employment during the summer months. For more information regarding summer jobs, come by the Placement Office, room 125.

National News Notes

1974 BLEAK ON THE ECONOMIC FRONT

Herbert Stein, the President's chief economic advisor, has predicted 6% unemployment in '74. a 70% rise in the price of gasoline, up an average of 30 cents on the gallon, and an overall rise in the cost of living. Stein attributes what he terms "practically pessimistic predictions" to the energy crisis. Airlines have announced that they will be forced to cancel 275,000 departures next year if fuel supplies are cut back further.

Despite all this Stein says the energy crisis will not be as bad as predicted, but the oil industry spokemen continue to claim the crisis has been underestimated by government officials.

The President in meetings with GOP officials in discussions of the party's prospects in the 1974 Congressional elections, said he sees a bright economic picture in '74.

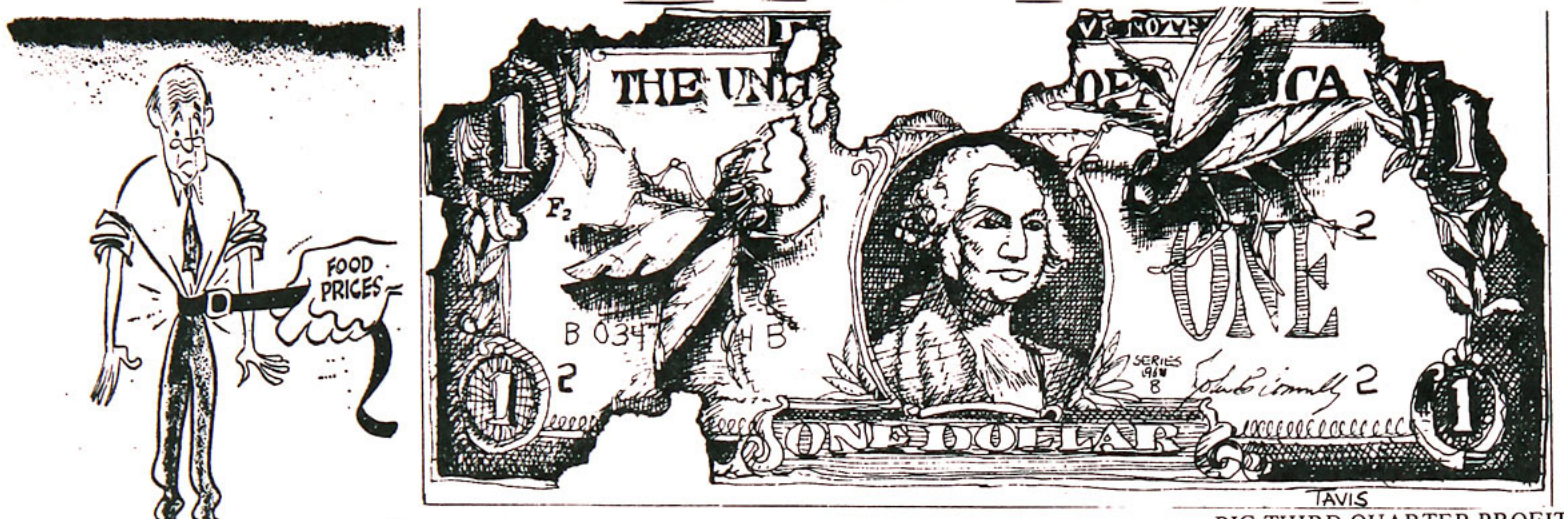
To meet the expected rise in unemployment, Stein sees government spending increasing in areas such as national defense and public works.

FOOD SHORTAGE FOR U.S.

James Hightower, a coordinator of the Food Action Committee, told a Senate committee that monopolistic practices in the food industry are leading to a food shortage of crisis proportions. He equated the oil crisis and what he called the lack of competition in the oil industry to what is happening in the food business.

INDUSTRY CREATED SHORTAGE OF OIL

Florida Attorney General Robert Shevin says he and his staff can prove in court that the oil industry created the fuel crisis. The major oil firms did this in an effort to raise profits, drive out small independent dealers and prod government to approve environmentally questionable projects like the Alaskan pipeline and drilling off the Florida Gulf Coast, claims Shevin. The Attorney General for the State of Connecticut has made similar allegations with Shevin before Congressional committees.



WHAT THE POLLS ARE SAYING

A Louis Harris survey on confidence in American institutions conducted for a Congressional committee, reports that only the doctor and the local trash collector retain more than 50% of the public's trust. Only 19% have confidence in the Executive Branch, according to the survey.

The Harris poll has reported that Vice-President Ford leads the pack in the GOP with 25% of 723 Republicans questioned, favoring him for the Presidential nomination in 1976. Ronald Reagan, governor of California, 20%; Senator Charles Percy of Illinois, 10%; Governor Nelson Rockefeller, 9%; Senator Howard Baker of Tennessee and John Connally, 8%.

The Wall Street Journal reports that President Nixon has won the annual charting for the personality that is most "hated and feared" of those exhibited in Madame Toussand's London wax museum. Second place went to der Fuehrer, Adolph Hitler.

The latest Gallup poll shows that those approving of the way President Nixon is handling his job as President has increased 3 percentage points to 31% since the last poll conducted in early November when only 27% approved of the job he was doing.

Peace on earth and good will toward men, and you too Spiro –

BIG THIRD QUARTER PROFITS FOR SOME

There may be a shortage of oil, but not on profits. That's what third quarter company reports indicate. In 1973 third quarter profits increased 91% for Gulf, 80% for Exxon, 51% for Standard Oil of California, 64% for Mobil and 274% for Royal Dutch Shell.

U.S. Steel producers have registered similar gains despite foreign competition. Third quarter profits for United States Steel, up 183% and an increase of 175% for Bethlehem Steel.

ENERGY CRISIS FORESEEN TWENTY YEARS AGO

The Paley Commission appointed by President Truman recommended in 1952 that alternate sources of energy be developed. The commission said that oil shale and coal could provide the basis for synthetic oil. The commission concluded that one day the nation would face a severe shortage of oil and natural gas. It recommended that industry and government together begin research and that production should be underway at least by the early 1960's.

THETA CHI FRAT GIVES UP GALLO WINE

The Theta Chi fraternity of the University of Delaware has endorsed the nationwide United Farm Workers boycott of Gallo wine and other scab (non-union) wines, as well as lettuce. Bob Cvornyek, the frat's secretary, in asking other fraternities to endorse the boycott, said "If an organization known mostly for its social life came out in support of the UFW campaign, this action would have all the more effect upon the students."

A.C.L.U. Nixon's New Friend

(CPS)–The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) demonstrated that justice is blind by filing a 'friend of the court' brief that argues both for and against the disclosure of Nixon's White House tapes.

In a Sept. 14 brief to the U.S. Court of Appeals, ACLU lawyers asked the court to reject Nixon's claim that he alone can decide when to comply with a lawful subpoena but also urged the court to consider the legal and constitutional right to privacy of those persons whose conversations were recorded without their consent.

ACLU lawyers suggest that "the participants in the conversations with the President, who are or will be witnesses or potential defendants before the grand jury have the right to move to supress the tapes by the Special Prosecutor in this action."

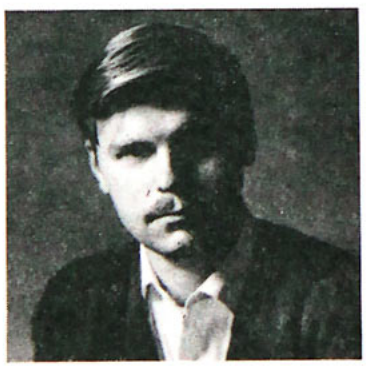
This suggestion is based on analysis of recent Supreme Court opinions which leave unsettled the question of whether a participant in a conversation which is recorded by a government officer violates the Fourth Amendment's prohibition against illegal search and seizure.

Kavulla Resigns; Hopkins To Move On

Mr. Timothy Kavulla, manager of the cafeteria for Professional Food Service Management, Inc., has resigned and will be leaving at the end of the month. Mr. Kavulla, who came to Saint Leo little more than a year ago, cited long hours and problems with Professional Food Service as reasons for resigning. Mr. Kavulla said he was "fed up with too much crap from the company" . . . and that he was putting in a 70 to 100 hours per week, working seven days a week, with the rare exception of a Saturday off. Kavulla said he liked the College, liked the students, liked the area, but not the Company.

Mr. Kavulla said the company has not yet appointed a replacement. He indicated that there was at least 100 hours worth of work to be done in planning menus for next semester and meeting salesmen. Mr. Kavulla said there is no one directly under him who would be in a position to assume his responsibilities, as he has been doing the work of manager and two assistant managers. He said that if a man is not appointed soon there could be problems at the beginning of next semester, as he won't be here after December 31st to help the new man make a smooth transition.

Mr. Kavulla said he is seeking work in the food management business and will go wherever his new position might take him.



Mr. Tim Kavulla

Wade Hopkins, a warm, gentle and soft spoken human being, will be leaving Saint Leo College as psychology instructor. He will be taking up a position as Director of the Alcohol and Drug Rehabilitation Program for the Mental Health Department of DeKalb County in Atlanta, Georgia.

Wade came here four years ago and worked in the counseling capacity. He became director of the program and began teaching full time as a psychology instructor a few years ago. When asked how he felt about Saint Leo, he said, "It has been one of the greatest experiences I have ever had."

He felt it was a sorrowful infliction to leave ties he made here, but the opportunity of initiating, developing and promoting a community project looked most rewarding. Besides the position offered job security, more money and retirement benefits which confronted him with his position here at Saint Leo.

Wade Hopkins is known by many to be a most receptive and understanding man. His contribution and his wife's as the Listening Room Supervisor have been appreciated and will be missed.

Monarch Roundballers Open Season

Major college basketball powers Providence and Georgetown dealt the 1973-74 Monarch roundballers a "rude awakening," when they traveled north for the season openers. The Florida sun provided no consolation as they returned to drop two more, Florida Tech and Australian Olympic team, before defeating Palm Beach Atlantic.

The season opener at Georgetown saw the Monarchs take a surprising ten point half time lead on the shooting of Guillermo Cancio-Bello, but the taller Hoyas, cheered on by 3,400 partisans, came back to edge Saint Leo by eight, 66-58.

Next stop, Providence, Rhode Island, and a confrontation with the nationally ranked Friars, led by potential All Americans Marvin Barnes and Kevin Stacom.

Norm Kaye had been there previously, in 1969, when his team was trounced 95-58 by a good Friar team. But this was a different team, a team with the hopes of achieving national recognition with one upset.

The dream was quickly shattered as the far superior Providence team roared to a 40-17 half time lead before 7,311 fans in their new field house. Substitutes played the remainder of the game and held Saint Leo at bay to score an 84-44 victory. Nate Crawford led all scorers with 18 points.

The Monarchs returned to Florida 0-2, then traveled to the Florida Tech court at Orlando on December 5. A balanced Tech team blew open a 34-14 half time lead and coasted to a 65-49 win over the dejected Monarchs. Nate Crawford again gained honors with 17 points, with Al Hengesbach adding 14.

The Saint Leo squad was happy to play in the less hostile confines of the Marion Bowman Activity Center when they hosted the Australian Olympic team on Friday Dec. 7. The Aussies, on a U.S. tour against amateur competition, took a seven point half time lead against the game home court quintet. The Monarchs refused to fold, but couldn't muster enough points to make up the deficit and succumbed 78-72, their fourth loss. Once again the bright spot was Nate Crawford, pumping in a season high 27 points. Cancio-Bello contributed 19.

The following evening Palm Beach Atlantic visited and were greeted by a team anxious to record their initial victory. The score was 40-38 in favor of Saint Leo after a closely contested twenty minutes. Saint Leo received a balanced attack and combated continued threats by the opponent to pick up a 75-66 win. Frank Lawrence popped in 18 and Dave Church a freshman, scored 17 for the victors.

Fall Golf Season Closes

The intercollegiate athletic department, under the direction of Norm Kaye, sent the golf team on three road trips this past fall. The team under the direction of Marc Rabinoff had two returning players participating in these tournaments. The team opened the season by sending two two-man teams to Lehigh Acres, where they competed in the annual Florida two ball championship. This tournament was played over the Mirror Lakes Golf Course which was the most challenging course thus far this season. Of the 36 teams represented, the team of Al Love and Ken Tomczuk finished 12th by scoring rounds of 79, 71, 74, they were followed by Ray St. Amour and Tom Cann.

In October the Lake Placid invitational was held. The U. of Florida won, Saint Leo placed 6th, pacing the team was Al Love with 319 over 72 holes, followed by Ken Tomczuk at 322.

For the first time Saint Leo took six men to the 27th annual Florida intercollegiate championship at Winter Haven. This team consisted of Ray St. Amour, Tom Cann, Mike Malone, Al Love, Peter Sossong and Joe Bartkowicz. The team played well, although disappointed that they finished in the bottom third of the schools present. Florida won this event, also. Leading the team in Winter Haven was Al Love, scoring 306 with Ray St. Amour at 309.

The team enjoyed these events greatly and would like to thank Mr. Kaye and Mr. Rabinoff for the education in sportsmanship and human realtions that we have received over the past three months.

PHI DELTA OMEGA

The brothers of Phi Delta Omega would like to extend their happy and hearty congratulations to the 24 new brothers that made Gamma pledge class another great one, with many more to come.

We also extend our gratitude and thanks to Mr. John Grossi, our moderator. He has done a helluva job and not enough words can express our thanks. Keep up the good work, John!

We give Steve Engel, Chuck Henderson, and Nick "Woodles" Southard our best wishes in the future and are sorry to see them go after this semester. Good luck to Chuck and Nick and we hope your marriages work out for the best.

All 57 brothers hsould be expecting a bigger and better time now, with the induction ceremonies coming up along with Winter Weekend and the pig on a spit. Christmas party. And don't forget the going away parties for Steve, Chuck and Nick. We should be able to tie one on.

We congratulate Alpha Sigma Chi on a fine fraternity football season, and our brothers are looking forward for next year.

Hey, Crazy! Watch out for those Mustangs at the bar. And what about that Winston Pack!
